Introduction

In academic writing, every idea in the text which is not your own must be documented appropriately. In other words, the arguments, opinions and the data taken from various sources (written/audio/online/multimedia) must be (1) indicated by a reference in the body text, and (2) listed in the section of works cited. By ignoring this rule, an author risks being accused of plagiarism.

There are various systems of documenting the sources. Academic papers published in the Czech language are based on ISO 690 (“Česká státní norma ISO 690”), usually; the style guides used internationally include, e.g., APA Style (Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association), MLA (Modern Language Association Handbook), and CMS (The Chicago Manual of Style).

The present document is aimed to guide you through the basic rules of bibliographical records as defined in the Chicago Manual of Style (henceforward CMS). In case your thesis refers to a more specific type of document which is not discussed here, consult Chicago-Style Citation Quick Guide and CMS F&Q (The Chicago Manual of Style 2017), or request a hard copy of the style guide, 16th edition (CMS 2010).

If you create a hyperlink in the electronic version of your paper, it is not considered to be a citation.

A reference to a web page is necessary (here Author-Date style).

This is an example of citing a book in author-date style.

1 Author-Date vs. Notes and Bibliography

There are two varieties of CMS source citations. In the Author-Date style, a source is cited inside the text, usually in round brackets, by indicating author's name, year of publication and pages where the source information can be found. The Notes and Bibliography system cites the sources in numbered footnotes, and each note corresponds to an upper-case number in the text.

(1a) Notes and Bibliography

Marlowe says he worked for the District Attorney as an investigator in the past. General is then interested in the reason Marlowe doesn't work for them anymore. "I was fired. For insubordination. I test very high on insubordination, General."<sup>15</sup>

15. Raymond Chandler, The Big Sleep (New York: Vintage Books, 1992), 3.

(1b) Author-Date

The term slang describes a variety of language which includes informal vocabulary. Slang vocabulary is created by trends in society and it usually lasts for a limited amount of time (Katamba 2005, 169). Slang words usually have figurative meanings which are known only by a particular group of speakers of specific slang (Reves 1926, 216).

At KAA department,

- Notes and Bibliography are required in literary and cultural studies papers

Marlowe says he worked for the District Attorney as an investigator in the past. General is then interested in the reason Marlowe doesn't work for them anymore. "I was fired. For insubordination. I test very high on insubordination, General."<sup>15</sup>

15. Raymond Chandler, The Big Sleep (New York: Vintage Books, 1992), 3.

- Author-Date is required in linguistic and didactic papers

However, the term Cockney not only gives a name to "someone born within the sound of the bells of Bow Bells" (Wright 1981, 11), but also to the traditional London dialect called Cockney. It is spoken in the area described above and in Whitechapel, Islington, Wapping and other districts of London (Wright 1981, 11).

2 “Cite it.” Do you quote, or paraphrase?

In citations, the original ideas from the sources might be treated in several ways. Firstly, you quote word-by-word the phrases or whole sentences enclosing them into double quotation marks:

(2) Quoting in Notes and Bibliography

The North Americans perceive ethnicity “as a synonym for cultural minority with no salient physical group difference, where Italian or Polish Americans were defined as ‘ethnic groups’ while African Americans or Amerasians were denoted as ‘racial groups.’” Europeans, on the other hand, thanks to European historical development, tend to see ethnicity as a “substitute for nationhood which is articulated in terms of a presumed commonality in shared territory or descent.”<sup>21</sup>

Unlike in the Czech style, periods and commas precede closing quotation marks.

cf. Czech „... jsou označováni za ‚rasové skupiny‘“.

In case you need to quote inside a quotation, use single quotation marks.

21. Siniša Malešević, Identity as Ideology: Understanding Ethnicity and Nationalism (Houndmills: Palgrave Macmillan, 2006), 5.

Make sure you do not mix up English and Czech punctuation marks (text editors are prone to auto-correct some English punctuation and turn it into Czech symbols even if English spell check is activated). The English quotation marks are always upper-case, they have a “69” format, and if the font makes it possible, they should be curly, not straight.

(3) Quotation marks: examples of wrong format

Eriksen claims that approaches to ethnicity may differ depending on what „analytical purposes they should ‘serve,’“ but all of them “has something to do with the classification of people and group relationships.”<sup>28</sup>

28. Thomas Hylland Eriksen, Ethnicity and Nationalism: Anthropological Perspectives, 3rd ed. (London: Pluto Press, 2010), 5.

Avoid Czech quotation marks.

Be consistent in using curly quotation marks.

Remember that the opening quote looks like number 6, whereas the closing quote like number 9.

66TEXT99

(4) Quoting in Author-Date

Clayton and Klevan (2012, 105) also claim that film reviews “strive to find expression for what is seen and heard, bringing a realm of sounds, images, actions and objects to meet a realm of words and concepts.”

Secondly, if more than 3 lines of a source text are quoted, they are inserted into a new paragraph and the text block is indented on both sides (in other words, the margins become broader). The long quotation is without quotation marks. Do not change a font size.

(5) Long quotation in Author-Date

Short quotations and translation equivalents must be made in double quotes. “If you need to include ‘quotes within quotes,’ please use single quotes. IF your quote is longer than three lines, use the style “LongQuote” like this, without any quotation marks:

Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet, consectetur adipiscing elit. Curabitur aliquam, arcu nec mattis rhoncus, lorem dolor laoreet eros, id mollis ipsum odio porta nibh. Etiam feugiat dui ut dui varius ac porttitor ipsum bibendum. Morbi eu diam sem. Nunc facilisis sollicitudin rhoncus. Quisque lorem elit, porttitor sit amet aliquam a, interdum sit amet erat. Nullam in neque eget metus pulvinar sollicitudin. Fusce imperdiet porta eros, in vestibulum nibh consectetur vitae. Aliquam blandit fermentum tellus. Curabitur sagittis sapien faucibus mi volutpat varius ac ac elit. Sed id venenatis metus. (Black 2011, 45)

Thirdly, you adopt the ideas from a source text using your own words—paraphrasing. Paraphrases are useful, for instance, if you need to summarize a content of a paragraph into one or two sentences. Remember that the source must be still indicated in a citation.

Example (6) shows how the following excerpt of Burgess' English Literature was paraphrased:

was not...
New Testament was made into Middle English. The Church was not happy about such translations: they were tolerated in the hands of monks or nuns whose Latin was poor or non-existent, but considered dangerous when made available to the common people. Why dangerous? Chiefly because there was always the possibility that a reader might interpret texts of the Bible in his own way as opposed to the way of the Church, or might regard the sacred text as a greater authority than the words of the priests and bishops. And so, before the Reformation, translations were for the most part made against the wishes of the Church authorities.

(6) Paraphrase in Notes and Bibliography

The Church found the availability of the Bible dangerous as it could possibly lead to a different interpretation of the Bible than the Church taught it.<sup>17</sup>

17. Anthony Burgess, English Literature (Harlow: Longman, 1974), 41.

- Be careful not to confuse paraphrasing with your own interpretation of a text: using one's own words is just a step from turning them into one's own ideas with a different meaning. If you feel unsure about your paraphrase, quote the source instead and add your own explanation of the passage.

- (ii) 'Semi-idiomatic' constructions which are variable but in a more limited way. The relation between the verb and particle is similar to that between a stem and an affix in word formation (cf App I.5), in that the substitution of one verb for another, or one particle for another, is constrained by limited productivity. In phrasal verbs like find out ['discover'], cut up ['cut into pieces'] and slacken off ['reduce pace/energy'] the verb word keeps its meaning, whereas the meaning of the particle is less easy to isolate. In contrast, it is the particle which establishes a family resemblance in the following groups:

(7) Paraphrase in Author-Date

Additionally, there are phrasal verbs, recognized by Quirk et al. (2000, 1162–63) to be semi-idiomatic. The semi-idiomatic status relates to constructions within which the verb mostly retains its original meaning while the particle's meaning is difficult to determine, as in cut up where the meaning is cut into pieces (Quirk et al. 2000, 1162).

Last, it might be the case that you need to refer to your source as a whole: for instance, in the Introduction part you present the overview of the sources discussing your topic or point to the key arguments proposed in some of these sources. Then, only the year of publication is indicated, and there is not any reference to a particular page.

(6) Reference to a source as a whole (Author-Date)

Contact-induced structural change has long been an area of heated debate in contact linguistics. It is traditionally assumed (e.g., Lass 1980) that language change is caused by internal evolution and thus rule-governed and regular. Systematic changes induced by language contact are unexpected because externally-motivated changes would be unpredictable (Poplack and Levey 2010). Even if one adopts the view that contact-induced change may affect the structural (e.g., morphological and syntactic) domains, whether such change comes about as an indirect consequence of lexical borrowing (King 2000; Sankoff 2002) or results from application of morphosyntactic rules (Thomason 2006) or mechanisms (e.g., Harris and Campbell 1995) remains unsettled.

3 Notes and Bibliography Citations

This section illustrates the notes and bibliography system. Each example shows (a) a full citation at a footnote and (b) its shortened form (used if a source is cited repeatedly), as well as (c) a bibliography entry that is located at the end of your paper.

3.1 Book

(7) Text

The readers of crime fiction are distracted by solving the puzzle from the real enjoyment of reading of the hunting game and chase, the manipulation and danger.<sup>1</sup>

A note number is an upper-case character and it is placed at the end of citation, following a punctuation mark.

(7a) Note

1. Philip L. Simpson, Psycho Paths: Tracking the Serial Killer through Contemporary American Film and Fiction (Carbondale: Southern Illinois University Press, 2000), 25.

Start with author's first name and surname.

Titles of books are formatted in italics.

A place of publication, publisher's name and the year of publication are cited in brackets.

A page number is placed after a comma.

Subsequent citations of sources already given in full should be shortened whenever possible:

(7)

It is suggested that literary detection undoubtedly falls into the Mystery category, but many crime stories are not that straightforward to categorize.<sup>14</sup>

(7b) Shortened note

14. Simpson, Psycho Paths, 34.

Cite author's surname only.

Shorten the title if it contains more than 4 words.

Cite a page number.

(7c) Bibliography entry

Simpson, Philip L. Psycho Paths: Tracking the Serial Killer through Contemporary American Film and Fiction. Carbondale: Southern Illinois University Press, 2000.

Author's first name and surname are inverted.

(8) Text. A book by several authors.

Female objectification includes “perceiving women as sexual object, focusing on attributes such as physical attractiveness, sex appeal and submissiveness while disregarding their personal abilities,” hence holding them to be inferior to men.<sup>2</sup>

(8a) Note

2. Joseph A. Bellizzi, Hans Kruckeberg, J. R. Hamilton, and William S. Martin, Women and Gender: a Feminist Psychology (New York: McGrawhill, 1992), 35–36.

if you cite two and more pages, their numbers are separated by the en-dash (Czech „pomlčka“).
Do NOT use a hyphen („spojovník“) for pagination: *170-171.

(8b) Shortened note

19. Bellizzi et al., Women and Gender, 47.

Give the first author’s name only in a shortened note and use the abbreviation et al. (Czech „a kol“).

(8c) Bibliography entry

Bellizzi, Joseph A., Hans Kruckeberg, J. R. Hamilton, and William S. Martin. Women and Gender: a Feminist Psychology. New York: McGrawhill, 1992.

- For works by or edited by 4 to 10 persons, all names and usually given. Note than only the first name is inverted; other names have a normal first name–surname order and are separated by commas. The names are not listed alphabetically, but in the order published on a book cover.

3.2 Chapter or Other Part of a Book

A typical example is a chapter by one or more author(s) in a book compiled by the editors:

(9) Text

Boyd describes the grotesque as the juxtaposition of horrific events and their matter-of-factly narration, often provoking a humorous response. What grotesque provokes in the reader is basically the vacillation between laughter and horror.<sup>3</sup>

(9a) Note

3. Molly Boyd, "The Grotesque," in The Companion to Southern Literature: Themes, Genres, Places, People, Movements, and Motifs, ed. Joseph M. Flora, Lucinda Hardwick MacKethan, and Todd W. Taylor (Louisiana: Louisiana State University Press, 2001), 323.

chapter title in
quotation marks

A comma separating the title is inside quotation marks.

book title: in italics,

editors' names in name–surname order, introduced by ed.

place of publication, publisher's cited in brackets

page number

(9) Text

Boyd adds that such representations distorted the natural to the point of comic absurdity, ridiculous ugliness, or ludicrous caricature.<sup>4</sup>

(9b) Shortened note

4. Boyd, “The Grotesque,” 324.

page numbers

If you cite a poem from a collection, you may identify the poem in the text by its title and refer to the collection as a whole in the notes:

(10) Text

At the beginning of their relationship Plath wrote “Ode for Ted”:

From under crunch of my man’s boot
green oat-sprouts jut;
he names a lapwing, starts rabbits in a rout
legging it most nimble
to sprigged hedge of bramble, stalks red fox, shrewd stoat.<sup>5</sup>

(10a) Note

5. Sylvia Plath, The Collected Poems: Sylvia Plath, ed. Ted Hughes, (New York: Harper Perennial Modern Classics, 2008), 29.

(10b) Bibliography entry

Plath, Sylvia. The Collected Poems: Sylvia Plath. Edited by Ted Hughes. New York: Harper Perennial Modern Classics, 2008.

Since this collection was edited by someone else than the author herself, editor’s name is cited, too.

A poem from an anthology can be cited as a chapter of a book:

(11) Text

Sweetest love, I do not go
For weariness of thee,
Nor in hope the world can show
A fitter love for me;<sup>70</sup>

(11a) Note

70. John Donne, “Song,” in The Norton Anthology of Poetry, 5th ed., ed. Margaret Fergusson, Mary Jo Salter, and Jon Stallworthy (New York: W. W. Norton & Company, 2005), 298.

(11b) Shortened note

71. Donne, “Song,” 299.

(11c) Note

Donne, John. “Song.” In The Norton Anthology of Poetry, 5th ed., edited by Margaret Fergusson, Mary Jo Salter, and Jon Stallworthy, 298–299. New York: W. W. Norton & Company, 2005.

When a book edition other than the first is cited, give its number that can be found on the title/copyright page. Use an ordinal number and the abbreviation ed.

3.3 Journal Article

By a journal article we do not mean news or magazine article, but an academic paper published in academic (scientific) journals which are issued at stated intervals. Although these journals have their editors, their names are not given in the citation, and the details about a place and a publisher are omitted.

(12) Text

The two lovers cannot live together, as they are not willing to assimilate; same as the domesticated cat cannot become wild, the Navajo would have difficulties to assimilate to the white culture.<sup>6</sup>

(12a) Note

article title in quotation marks

journal title
in italics

6. Šárka Bubíková, "Ethnicity and Social Critique in Tony Hilleman's Crime Fiction," Prague Journal of English Studies 5, no. 1 (April 2016): 154.

The first number (5) indicates the volume, the second (1) the issue; this entry means that a journal has been published for 5 years and in 2016 this was the issue no. 1.

The date (year, month, season) appears in parentheses after the volume/issue number.

Unlike in books, a page number is introduced by a colon.

(12b) Shortened note

9. Bubíková, “Ethnicity,” 156.

Notice that, unlike in an edited book, a formula “in” is missing.

(12c) Bibliography entry

Bubíková, Šárka. “Ethnicity and Social Critique in Tony Hilleman’s Crime Fiction.” Prague Journal of English Studies 5, no. 1 (April 2016): 141–158.

If a journal is accessible online, add a URL:

(12d)

Bubíková, Šárka. “Ethnicity and Social Critique in Tony Hilleman’s Crime Fiction.” Prague Journal of English Studies 5, no. 1 (April 2016): 141–158.

<http://dspace.upce.cz/handle/10195/66737>.

Insert the URL as a plain text, not as a hyperlink.

3.4 Theses and Dissertations

Another type of academic writing that might be cited in your paper is a graduate paper, i.e., an unpublished thesis (BA, MA) or a dissertation (PhD) accessible via university e-sources or at libraries (if such a paper was published, cite it as a book).

(13a) Note

10. Michal Kleprlík, “The Labyrinth of Modernity according to James Joyce” (PhD diss., Palacký University in Olomouc, 2015), 70.

(13b) Shortened note

Kleprlík, “The Labyrinth of Modernity”, 100.

(13c) Bibliography entry

Kleprlík, Michal. “The Labyrinth of Modernity according to James Joyce.” Unpublished PhD diss., Palacký University in Olomouc, 2015.

3.5 News and Magazine Articles

The rules for citing magazine and news article are probably the least strict and most varied in CMS. Consider the printed newspaper/magazine first. If author's name is known, you can cite the article similarly to a journal article:

(14) Text

Donald Trump's cabinet nominees rejected Obama's policies.<sup>7</sup>

(14a) Note

7. Michael D. Shear, "Trump Arrives, Set to Assumer Power," The New York Times, January 20, 2017, 1.

Page numbers, if any, can be cited in the note but are omitted from bibliography.

(14b) Shortened note

8. Shear, "Trump Arrives," 1.

(14c) Bibliography entry

Shear, Michael D. "Trump Arrives, Set to Assumer Power," The New York Times, January 20, 2017.

Newspapers can be cited in parenthetical references ONLY. Consequently, the bibliography need not list newspaper items if these have been documented in the text:

(14) Citing in text rather than in bibliography

As it was stated in articles discussing the early Cabinet hearings, Donald Trump’s cabinet nominees rejected Obama’s policies (The New York Times, January 20, 2017).

Secondly, if an article was published online, include a URL (Uniform Resource Locator that identifies a web page on the internet) into a bibliography entry.

(15) Text

President-elect Trump’s nominees have made it clear that they intent to sweep away Obama’s domestic policy.<sup>8</sup>

(15c) Bibliography entry

Shear, Michael D. “Trump Nominees Make Clear Plans to Sweep Away Obama’s Polices.” The New York Times, January 19, 2017.

<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/01/19/us/politics/trump-cabinet-hearings-obama-policies.html?mcubz=1>.

Insert the URL as a plain text, not as a hyperlink.

3.6 Book Review

This type of citation is similar to a journal/magazine article. Reviews are cited by the name of the reviewer(s) and the citation include book title and its author, but no other publication data.

(16) Text

“It was partly due to Victoria’s manipulative energy that seven of her 42 grandchildren eventually became crowned rulers.”<sup>9</sup>

(16a) Note

9. Miranda Seymour, “The Royal Marriages That Shaped Europe,” review of Queen Victoria’s Matchmaking, by Deborah Cadbury, The Guardian, September 11, 2017.

(16b) Shortened note

12. Seymour, “The Royal Marriages.”

(16c) Bibliography entry

3.7 Website Content

It is often sufficient simply to describe web pages and other website content in the text:

(17) Text

As of April 17, 2017, Google’s Privacy and Policy page informed the users that Google automatically collects and stores certain information in server logs.

If a more formal citation is needed, it may be styled like the following examples:

(17a) Note

10. “Privacy Policy,” Privacy & Terms, Google, last modified April 17, 2017, <https://www.google.com/policies/privacy/>.

(17b) Shortened note

11. Google, “Privacy Policy.”

(17c) Bibliography entry

website

Cite when the source was posted or accessed.

For online multimedia, include the source type (e.g., video) and length.

(19b) Shortened note

15. Cimrman English Theatre, "The Stand-In."

(19c) Bibliography entry

3.8 E-books

The majority of electronically published books offered for download from a library or bookseller will have a printed counterpart. Because of the potential for differences, however, it is necessary to indicate that you have consulted a format other than print.

(20) Text

“Call me Ishmael.”<sup>40</sup>

If an e-book does not carry stable page numbers, indicate a chapter or a section that you cite.

(20a) Note

40. Herman Melville, Moby-Dick; or, The Whale (New York: Harper & Brothers, 1851), 1, <http://mel.hofstra.edu/moby-dick-the-whale-proofs.html>.

(20b) Shortened note

62. Melville, Moby-Dick, 363.

The e-book is based on this edition.

(20c) Bibliography entry

Melville, Herman. Moby-Dick; or, The Whale. New York: Harper & Brothers, 1851. <http://mel.hofstra.edu/moby-dick-the-whale-proofs.html>.

3.9 Reprinted and Reissued Works

The same work can be reissued by the original publisher in a different format, e.g., as a paperback, or published by another company. If the original publication details are relevant for your entry, include them:

(21) Text

“My mistress had a daughter of nine years old . . . ”<sup>42</sup>

(21a) Note

42. Jonathan Swift, Gulliver's Travels, unabridged republication (New York: Cornwell Press, 1913; Clayton: Prestwick House, 2005), 79.

Cite both original and new publication data and separate them with a semi-colon.

(21b) Shortened note

63. Swift, Gulliver's Travels, 100.

(21c) Bibliography entry

Swift, Jonathan. Gulliver's Travels. New York: Cornwell Press, 1913. Republished with slight emendations. Clayton: Prestwick House, 2005. Page references are to the 2005 edition.

In bibliography, you may specify which edition you used for citation.

3.10.1 Translations of Anonymous Works

Some sources might be cited by the name of the translator(s). The following example cites the anonymous work Béowulf translated from Old English into present day English:

(22) Text

Then out of the wasteland came Grendel . . . <sup>51</sup>

(22a) Note

51. Michael Swanton, trans., Béowulf, rev. ed. (Manchester: Manchester University Press, 1997), 69.

Translator's name is given instead of author's name and indicated by the abbreviation trans.

(22b) Shortened note

52. Swanton, Béowulf, 163.

In the shortened note, however, trans. is omitted.

(22c) Bibliography entry

Swanton, Michael, trans. Béowulf, rev. ed. Manchester: Manchester University Press, 1997.

A translated work with known authorship is normally listed with the author's name appearing first and the name of the translator(s) appearing after the title:

(23) Text

Hamlete, odlož tuhle černotu

a pohleď na svět jako přítel Dánska.

Copak chceš pořád koukat do země

a hledat v ní hrob svého tatínka?<sup>52</sup>

In Shakespeare, variations can occur in wording and line numbering. Therefore, you should specify the edition (here, 4th ed.) and cite the act (1), scene (2), and lines (68–71).

(23a) Note

52. William Shakespeare, Hamlet, Princ dánský, trans. Jiří Josek, 4th ed. (Praha: Romeo, 2016), 1.2.68–71. References are to act, scene, and line.

(23b) Shortened note

84. Shakespeare, Hamlet, 1.5. 9–23.

(23c) Bibliography entry

Shakespeare, William. Hamlet, Princ dánský. Translated by Jiří Josek. 4th ed. Praha: Torst, 2003.

4 Author-Date Style

This section illustrates the Author-Date system of CMS citations. Each example of (a) an in-text citation is accompanied by an example of (b) a works cited entry that is located at the end of your paper.

4.1 Book

(24a) In-text

Costermongers were those who started spreading rhyming slang as one of the first users, but sporting journals and music hall songs introduced rhyming slang to a much wider public (Wright 1981, 95).

In-text citation must include author's surname + year of publication, and a page number you refer to separated by a comma

(24b) Works cited

Wright, Peter. 1981. Cockney Dialect and Slang. London: Batsford.

Author's name and surname are inverted.

Titles of books are formatted in italics.

You indicate a place of publication and, after a colon, a publisher.

4.1 Book

(25a) In-text

These are called ephemeral rhymes, meaning they last only for a short time – only for the period a well-known person is considered to be important, for example Al Pacino means cappuccino (Katamba 2005, 170–171).

if you cite two and more pages, their numbers are separated by the en-dash (Czech „pomlčka“).
Do NOT use a hyphen („spojovník“) for pagination: *170-171.

The citation which refers to a single sentence in your text is enclosed in this sentence, i.e., it is placed before a period.

(25b) Works cited

Katamba, Francis. 2005. English Words: Structure, History, Usage. 2nd ed. London: Routledge.

When an edition other than the first is cited, its number (in the form ordinal number + ed.) follows the title.

4.1 Book

(26a) In-text

The infinitive functioning as subject is found in nominal clauses. Subject to-infinitive clauses are rare in all registers, but if found they are used more likely in academic prose than in casual conversation. (Biber et al. 1999, 727)

The citation which refers to a longer passage from the source is placed after a period.

If a book has more than 4 authors, only the first one is indicated for the in-text citation and the rest is abbreviated by et al. (Czech „a kol.“).

(26b) Works cited

Biber, Douglas, Stig Johansson, Geoffrey Leech, Susan Conrad, and Edward Finegan. 1999. Longman Grammar of Spoken and Written English. Harlow: Pearson Education Ltd.

- For works by or edited by 4 to 10 persons, all names are usually given. Note that only the first name is inverted; other names have a normal first name–surname order and are separated by commas. The names are not listed alphabetically, but in the order published on the title page.

☺ A famous Comprehensive Grammar of the English Language has 4 authors. Still, it is common practice in linguistic papers to cite it as Quirk et al. (1985). ☺

4.1 Book

Where the author's name appears in the text, it need not be repeated in the parenthetical citation. This is very frequent with the paraphrases of the type “Black (2000) observes/indicates/suggests/remarks”, etc.

(27a) In-text

Dušková et al. (1994, 204) reveal that it is often very difficult to decide if a given combination should be classified as a phrasal verb or as a free association of a verb and an adverbial particle. Biber et al., for example, mention come back, as in I left my keys in the office so I had to come back, as a representative of a free association of a verb and an adverbial particle (1999, 403).

Year and pagination are cited in brackets, either immediately after author's name, or at the end of a citation.

For the citation of the source as a whole, indicate the year of publication only:

(28a) In-text

Fiorina et al. (2005) and Fischer and Hout (2006) reach more or less the same conclusions. In contrast, Abramowitz and Saunders (2005) suggest that the mass public is deeply divided between red states and blue states and between churchgoers and secular voters.

4.2 Chapter of an Edited Book

Some books are published as a collection of papers by various authors. A book of this type is compiled by one or more editors whose names must be indicated in Works Cited.

(29a) In-text

There are other tests which can be employed to establish whether an understood, but covert subject is actually syntactically represented. Such tests have been applied to the Finnish inclusive generic pronoun, and have showed consistently that there is a syntactically represented subject (Hakulinen and Karttunen 1973).

In-text citation is the same as for a book by one author: give the names of the authors of a chapter you cite.

4.3 Journal Article

By a journal article we do not mean news or magazine article, but an academic paper published in academic (scientific) journals which are issued at stated intervals. Although these journals have their editors, their names are not given in the citation as well as the details about a place and a publisher.

(30a) In-text

In the adversarial context, where self-promotion and contestation of opposing viewpoints play a greater role, I-oriented say forms are more frequent than you-oriented items (Szczyrbak 2016, 150).

4.4 Theses and Dissertations

The last text type of academic writing that might be cited in your paper is a graduate paper, i.e., an unpublished thesis (BA, MA) or a dissertation (PhD) accessible via university e-sources or at libraries (if such a paper was published, cite it as a book).

(31b) Works cited

Huschová, Petra. 2008. “Epistemic and Root Possibility Meanings of Can and May in Written English.” Unpublished PhD diss., Charles University, Prague.

(32b) Works cited

4.5 News and Magazine Articles

The rules for citing magazine and news article are probably the least strict and most varied in CMS. Consider the printed newspaper/magazine first. If author's name is known, you can cite the article similarly to a journal article:

(33a) In-text

Page numbers, if any, can be cited in the text but are omitted from a reference list entry.

Donald Trump's cabinet nominees rejected Obama's policies (Shear 2017, 43).

(33b) Works cited

Shear, Michael D. 2017. "Trump Arrives, Set to Assume Power," The New York Times, January 20, 2017.

It can be helpful to repeat the year with sources that are cited also by month and day.

For unsigned articles, the name of the newspaper can stand in place of the author:

(34a) In-text

Donald Trump's cabinet nominees rejected Obama's policies (The New York Times* 2017, January 22).

(34b) Works cited

New York Times. 2017. "Obama's Policies Rejected." January 22, 2017.

Newspapers can be cited in parenthetical references ONLY. Consequently, the bibliography need not list newspaper items if these have been documented in the text:

(35) Citing in text rather than in bibliography

As it was stated in the article discussing the early Cabinet hearings, Donald Trump's cabinet nominees rejected Obama's policies (The New York Times, January 20, 2017).

Secondly, if an article was published online, include a URL (Uniform Resource Locator that identifies a web page on the internet) into a bibliography entry.

(36a) In-text

President-elect Trump's nominees have made it clear that they intent to sweep away Obama's domestic policy (Shaer 2017).

(36b) Bibliography entry

Shear, Michael D. 2017. "Trump Nominees Make Clear Plans to Sweep Away Obama's Polices." The New York Times, January 19, 2017.

https://www.nytimes.com/2017/01/19/us/politics/trump-cabinet-hearings-obama-policies.html?mcubz=1.

Insert the URL as a plain text, not as a hyperlink.

4.6 Website Content

It is often sufficient simply to describe web pages and other website content in the text (“As of May 1, 2017, Google’s Privacy and Terms page listed . . .”). If a more formal citation is needed, it may be styled like the examples below.

The works cited entry should contain as much of the following as can be determined: the title/description of the page, the author of the content (if any), the owner of the site (e.g., YouTube), and a URL. Also include a date of publication, revision or modification; if no such date can be determined, include an access date.

(37a) In-text

Google informs the users that certain information is automatically stored in server logs (Google 2017).

(37b) Works cited

website

title and description of the page, if given

Google. 2017. “Privacy Policy.” Privacy & Terms. Last modified April 17, 2017.
<https://www.google.com/policies/privacy/>.

Insert the URL as a plain text, not as a hyperlink.

Most pages include the date of publishing and/or modifying their content. This should be given in Works Cited.

(38a) In-text

Bachelor study programmes in English offered in Pardubice include Specialisation in Educational Sciences (University of Pardubice 2017)

If the date of publishing/modification is missing, indicate the date when you accessed the page.

(38b) Works cited

University of Pardubice. 2017. “Degree Study Programmes Taught in English.” Accessed August 15, 2017. <https://www.upce.cz/en/study/degrees-student.html>.

(39a) In-text

One of the Cimrman’s stage commandments says, “Remember that in most cases your stage name is different from your actual name”(Cimrman English Theatre 2017).

(39b) Works cited

Cimrman English Theatre. 2017. “Cimrman, Smoljak, Svěrák: Záskok (The Stand-In) trailer by Jan Svěrák.” YouTube video, 1:51. Posted February 24, 2017. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=23AGwKb9huU>.

For online multimedia, include the source type (e.g., video) and length.

Cite when the source was posted or accessed.

4.7 Social Media Content

Citations of content shared through social media can usually be limited to the text and no reference list entry is needed, as in the example below.

(40) In-text

Conan O'Brien's tweet was characteristically deadpan: "In honor of Earth Day, I'm recycling my tweets" (@ConanOBrien, April 22, 2015).

Identify author's name using the at-sign @ and cite the date when a post was published

If a more formal citation is needed, make a reference list entry, too:

(41a) In-text

University of Pardubice announced the re-opening of the dormitory (University of Pardubice 2017).

Since the posts usually do not have any titles, quote up to the first 160 characters of a post:

(41b) Works cited

University of Pardubice. 2017. "Dnes bude po modernizaci otevřen PAVILON C." Facebook, September 14, 2017. <https://www.facebook.com/univerzita.pardubice/?fref=ts>.

Cite the website and the date of publishing.

4.8 Tables and Figures

Remember that images, charts, tables and figures adopted from the sources must be documented adequately, too. All graphics in your paper should be numbered and given a title so that you could refer to them unambiguously.

(42a) In-text

In the case of student writing, the whole process of writing is very complex, takes quite a long time and includes several stages. It is possible to describe this process with the help of White and Arndt's model, which characterizes writing as an interrelated set of recursive stages (see Figure 1):

Indicate a type of graphic and number it, using bold characters.

Use a standard author-date reference and, if possible, include a figure number from the source:

(42b) Works cited

Harmer, Jeremy. 2001. The Practice of English language Teaching. 4th ed. London: Longman.

4.8 Tables and Figures

Your own graphics should have numbers and the titles that are as succinct as possible and do not suggest any interpretation of the data.

(43) Drafting a table

Variable	Mean	Standard deviation
Cohort dummy
1946	.128	.33
1947	.140	.35
1948	.145	.35
1949	.148	.35
1950	.145	.35
1951	.145	.35
1952	.148	.35

Years of higher education	1.440	2.47
Wage (log)	9.170	.49
Middle-class family background	.246	.43
N	26,371	26,371

Make sure the punctuation is correct: English uses decimal points (2.34 = “two point three four”), and a comma to separate groups of thousands (2,300 = “two thousand three hundred”).

Table 10. Labor Force Survey

4.9 Quoting a Quotation, aka Original Source Unavailable

Although this practice should be avoided, it might be unnecessary for various reasons. If you cannot access the original source, CMS recommends to “mention the original author and date in the text, and cite the secondary source in the reference list entry. The text citation would include the words ‘quoted in.’” (CMS 2010)

(44a) In-text

As it is suggested in Brown (2002; quoted in Černá 2015), negative attitudes to the L2 and its speakers is not developed in the early years of L2 acquisition . . .

(44b) Works cited

5 List of Works Cited

All sources you refer to in your paper (whether or not you quote them directly) are included in an obligatory section located at the end of your paper which is usually titled “Bibliography”, “Works Cited” or “Reference List”. As you may have noticed in the previous chapters, formatting of this section is different for Notes and Bibliography and Author-Date styles. Both systems are, however, based on alphabetical ordering and chronology.

- Do NOT forget listing an entry for every source that was cited, and vice versa, do NOT include any sources without a reference in the text itself. This section does not serve as a space for further reading suggestions.

The most crucial difference between the two systems is placing the date (year) in an entry. Generally, for Notes and Bibliography the year is at the end of the entry, separated by a comma from the name of a publisher. As for Author-Date, the year follows author’s name immediately (that’s why this is named “author-date”).

For titles of your sources use the headline style. Simply speaking, this means that capital letters are used for the lexical words and small letters for the function words (articles, prepositions, and conjunctions).

5.1 List of Works Cited: Notes and Bibliography

(42) Structure of a bibliography entry in Notes and Bibliography

The list is structured alphabetically, according to author's surname.

Two works of the same author published in the same year are listed alphabetically (Big Sleep, Long Goodbye).

Browne, Ray B. Murder on the Reservation: American Indian Crime Fiction. Madison: The University of Wisconsin Press, 2004.

Chandler, Raymond. The Big Sleep. New York: Vintage Books, 1992.

Chandler, Raymond. The Long Goodbye. New York: Vintage Books, 1992.

Chandler, Raymond. The Simple Art of Murder. New York: Vintage Books, 2002.

Fenton, Steve. Ethnicity, Key Concepts. Malden: Blackwell, 2003.

More works of the same author are listed chronologically, starting with the least recent.

5.2 List of Works Cited: Author-Date

(43) Structure of a reference list in Author-Date style

The list is structured alphabetically, according to author's surname.

More works of the same author are listed chronologically, starting with the least recent.

Black, John. 2010. A Book on Quotations in Academic Papers. London: Fictional Publishing House.

Black, John. 2011a. A Book on Quotations in Academic Papers. London: Fictional Publishing House.

Black, John. 2011b. Another Book on Quotations in Academic Papers. London: Fictional Publishing House.

Red, Norbert. 1991. "The Syntax of Citations." PhD diss., Tilburg University.

Two works of the same author published in the same year are indexed with a, b, etc.
